Historical Elevator

The historic elevator at Pera Palace Hotel, constructed in 1892, is Turkey's first electric elevator. As an integral part of the hotel's elegant and grand architecture, this elevator reflects the modern engineering and aesthetic sensibilities of its time. Still in operation with its original structure, it stands as a significant symbol of our hotel's storied past, offering our guests a nostalgic experience.

Ataturk Museum Room - 101

Room 101 is famously known as the room where Mustafa Kemal Atatürk stayed and worked during his visits to Istanbul. Before taking residence at Dolmabahçe Palace, he preferred to stay at this hotel and in this particular room whenever he visited the city. Room 101 is actually considered Atatürk's first home in Istanbul, where he spent several significant years of his life.

Agatha Christie Room – 411 (46 sqm)

Renowned crime author Agatha Christie was a constant guest of Pera Palace Hotel and she always stayed in Room 411. It is rumoured that, it was the room, Christie wrote her popular novel, Murder on the Orient Express. Now, Room 411 is recognized as the Agatha Christie Room. The room still has its original antique furniture and lots of materials to acknowledge the departed author.

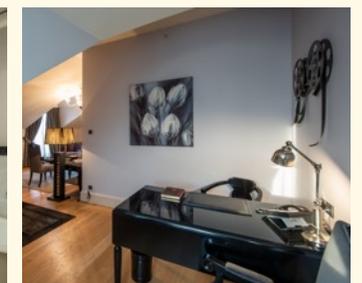

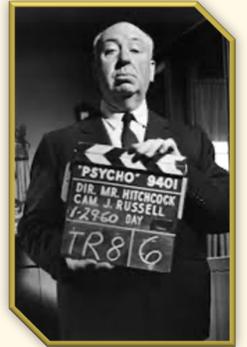

The Agatha Christie Room, with its 46 m2 spacious living space, library with Agatha's books published in several languages, and the replica of the typewriter used by the author, combined with antique furniture that reflects the spirit of the period, provides a harmonious accommodation experience. The Agatha Christie Room, which is located facing the view of Tepebaşı, hosts a unique memory with its character that accompanied the most precious times of more than a century years old history.
